My Opinion is that the government should stay out of technology and the web. They are corrupting freedom of speech with every attack on the Internet & Microsoft. People shouldn't be prosecuted for doing good business and making good products. There hasn't been a company that is better at doing business OR making good software for consumers and business to use. Most Commerce on the internet is backed by Microsoft servers and a technology that Microsoft has made. That awesome advance (known as ACTIVE SERVER PAGES) in the internet is downplayed by one or more tiny little losers in the consumer market. Most people know and love Windows it's on something like 90% of consumers PCs. Your alternatives are Macintosh or Linux. Both of these options are either too technical or too expensive. Windows is easy enough for most Non-Technical people to use and learn. Macintosh says they are the easiest but with most people they don't want a Macintosh because they look dumb or they are too expensive you choose why. Plus $1000 for a low end computer isn't desirable for me how about you!? Your other option are Linux and OS2 (all flavors) do you program C? I don't and I'm a database administrator enough said. Another person (or the government) might take the opposite view. Well they are so good they are trying to take over all the companies that make technology. I don't believe they are trying to take over anything. I think that the consumers are making them. They are making products that are far better than any others. I don't work for Microsoft nor do I believe in their mission statements. But as a consumer in the technology field I believe in their products. So be it I will continue to buy Microsoft products regardless of any government regulations%
